These, These, and other new topics, are examined at a higher level. When are past exams published? Exam sessionPublication date March and JuneJuly September and DecemberJanuary A full exam is published after any change to exam format. For Sections A and B, look for the short and easy questions and answer them first. See also F9 revision lectures based on past exams How to pass ACCA F9 Exam However much you have studied, your approach in the exam room can make a big difference. They cannot be published in any form (paper or soft copy), or sold for profit in any way, without first gaining the express permission of ACCA. A combined sample of constructed response questions will be published twice a year. Note that objective test questions are not published. Don't waste time doing neat workings for Sections A and B nobody will look at them. Past exams are an important part of your revision strategy but, as noted above, the specimen exam is also a key resource. Section C has two long form questions (a full question requiring a full answer) of 20 marks each. These two questions will come from the working capital management, investment appraisal, and business finance areas of the syllabus. The Section A and B questions can (and will!) cover all areas of the syllabus. Make sure that you write something for each part of each question you might get stuck or you might run out of time, but you can always write something, and writing anything sensible will likely get you a mark. As a new exam format was introduced in September 2016 with the introduction of CBEs, the CBE and paper exams were published in full for this session. All exam questions and solutions are the copyright of ACCA and can only be used for classroom and student use in preparation for their ACCA exams. Make sure that you are happy with the arithmetic, but also listen carefully to the lectures and check that you really do understand the techniques and theories when you have confidence in a subject, then practice as many questions from previous exams as you can. The materials appear on this page as they did when the exams were established and have not been updated to reflect any changes in legislation or standards, or any changes in the curriculum or the structure of the exam and the types of questions. For the written parts of the questions, there are several financial management theories that can be examined, but many of them re-check that you understand the techniques and their assumptions and limitations. Ask the specific questions of the exam and admit each other with study and motivation tips. Document Structure ACCA F9 There are three sections on the exam "Section A will consist of 15 multiple-choice questions of 2 notes each; Section B of the exam consists of three scenarios, each with 5 multiple-choice questions. Nor may they be used, in whole or in part, as examinations by other contracting authorities or institutions. When the time for the entire exam is almost up, go back and guess the answer to any questions you haven't completed, guess that some questions can only result in a correct answer, but 2 grades is huge if you would otherwise have failed 48. Past exams are available so you can see and become familiar with the styles of questions you may face on your exam. Nature of the role ACCA F9 The role ACCA F9 "Financial Management" deals with the management of a company's finances. In general, about 50% of the exam consists of cycles, and about 50% is written. There are 3 hours for the exam, plus 15 minutes of reading time if you are taking the paper-based exam (instead of the computer-based exam). In the time you have left then spend more time on the longest and most difficult questions. Questions and solutions of previous exams published on this page with precaution if you are preparing for exams. For this reason, the past exams should always be used in combination with the Specimen exams á € "These are published after any change of examination format and always illustrate the most up-to-date format of the exams Both in CBE and paper. I, how to get the best of past exams The best time to use past exams is after studying the full program and be ready for some practice of questions of Review. It provides you with a clear image of how the exams will be evaluated and how the examination will be structured, as well as the style and the range of questions you could see in the real exam. Try not to spend too much time in any of the sections Á «You should afford about 27 minutes for each of sections A and B. B.
